JOYCE TRAVEL PROGRAM:

Havana, Cuba

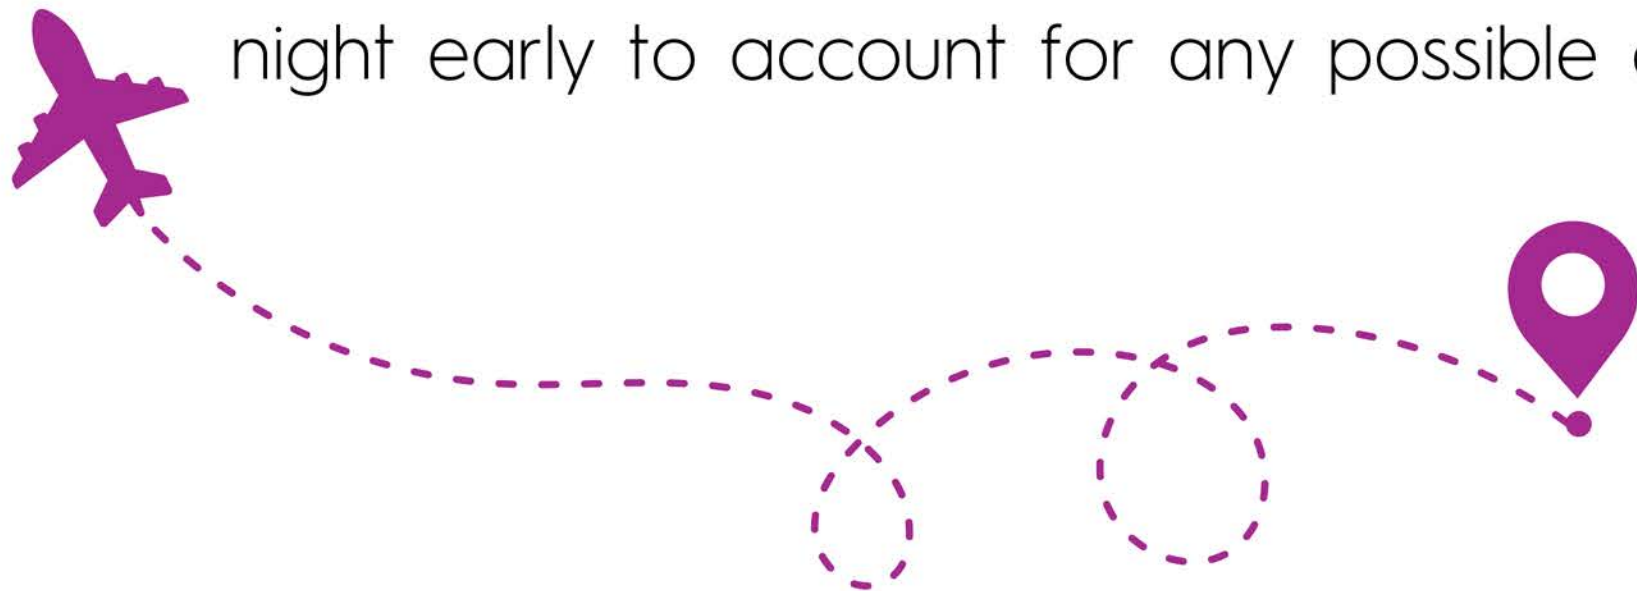

Over the past 25 years, The Joyce has hosted dozens of research and educational trips to Cuba in support of the Cuban People, establishing meaningful relationships with their artistic community and helping to bridge the gap with the nearby country through cultural exchange. In 2011, this effort culminated with the first U.S. tour of Cuba's premiere contemporary dance company-Danza Contemporanea de Cuba-including the company's New York premiere at The Joyce Theater. Since then, The Joyce has developed an expanded Cuba initiative including an arts administration workshop in Havana; internships for Cuban professional arts administrators in New York City; the creation of a new work by Brooklyn-based choreographer Ronald K. Brown for a Cuban company of his choice; and the U.S. debut of Malpaso Dance Company-at The Joyce Theater in May 2014.
